ONE WORD

theatrical documentary film distributed by Studio Kalliope
(c) Germany / Republic of the Marshall Islands 2020
English language | 2K - DCP | 83 minutes | 16: 9 | Dolby Digital

ONE WORD tells of the effects of climate change on the Republic of the Marshall Islands and its people. The Marshall Islands spread out across 29 coral atolls, which comprise 1156 individual islands and islets. Most parts of the Marshall Islands are less than 5.9 feet above sea level.

Even before the era of the Ancient Greeks, the Marshall Islands were inhabited. But now the greenhouse gas emissions of the industrial societies severely harm or might even destroy the ancient culture of the Marshall Islands. The rising sea erodes the low lying land, salinizes the groundwater and kills the vegetation. Forecasts predict the destruction of the islands as early as 2050.

ONE WORD has been screened and will be screened at film festivals around the world, including the HIFF - 40th Hawai'i International Film Festival, the Los Angeles Lift-Off Film Festival, the 22nd International Ecological Film Festival (Russia) and the Tokyo Lift-Off Film Festival, the 15th Trinidad + Tobago Film Festival, the Innsbruck Nature FILM Festival (INFF), the FIORENZO SERRA FILM FESTIVAL (Italy) and others.

Theatrical release will be on November 5, 2020. The premiere will take place on November 4, 2020 in Berlin as a double premiere in the Sputnik Kino and the ACUD cinema.

ONE WORD deliberately dispenses with a commenting voice-over and is only told by the voices of the inhabitants of a dying world. But their messages are surprisingly powerful and full of optimism: We on this earth can and will change in order to preserve civilization and the planet!

The film was developed and shot on site in nine months in film workshops with the participation of many Marshallese people - from police officers to teachers, from fishermen to sales clerks. The filmmakers trusted the Marshallese people to be the only reliable experts when it comes to the story of their land.
